Expanded Description

Texas good old boy voice talent. Voice ranges from baritone to brassy. Can do many dialects, including deep redneck (think "Larry the Cable Guy"), laconic cowboy, Southern Politician, hell fire and brimstone preacher, Slingblade, Tired Old Retired man, old Texas Cowboy (Gabbie Hayes or Walter Brennan) cheesy top 40 radio DJ or club announcer, auctioneer, and Highpowered "Nascar" kind announcer. Can do "Wolfman Jack" style impersonations. Can create and/or interpret many types of rural characters, as needed from Deep South redneck, to nasal midwestern tourist. Can do almost any voice over or dialect for the southern US.

Experience

For an old boy from the Blacklands of Texas, I have done a little bit of everything. Have done a huge amount of public speaking, including but not limited to master of ceremonies, homeletics, work in radio and television commercials. Was seen in then Coen Brothers Film, "O Brother Where art Thou," running the steam train. Recently did similar work in the Paul Anderson production of "There will be Blood." I have worked in industrial films, including Millard Rice's instructional video, "The Model A Team."

Training

Had personal tutoring and training from Bob Michaels, Dallas' premier voice over artist and voice actor.

Additional Skills

A 6th generation Texas Farmer and Railroad engineer. We have provided vintage equipment and services for several movies. Play ragtime, blues and southern gospel piano and can also play the banjo Uke (ala George Formby). If needed, I can cowboy yodel.

Location

Dallas, Ft Worth, Plano, Sherman, North Texas (United States)
